

City Regulator

Some Further Suggestions are Made.

To the Editor of the Eagle.

Imagine, if you can, how many sweat-soaked shirts you will wear during the coming week—ad nauseam.

The growing of school children on account of this ice has commenced. The teachers are patiently awaiting annual orders.

What a roaring farce that golf contest has been—a regular go-as-you-please, no rules governing the game. Call it all off, please a set of rules and play the game according to the rules.

Why didn't they advertise that affairs regarding the school matters also, and catch them "both coming and going"? In one case, well taken before spoken, and in the other well shaken before taken.

The Eagle's speaking of the Wichita people buying Wichita property reviews the old story of the farmer who sold his boys were getting rich sitting around in the barn on Sunday trading jackknives with each other and paying boot.

Martyrdom doesn't consist of slapping some one in the face, and when the arm of the law reaches out to punish the transgressor, raise the perpetration within him, on the contrary, martyrdom is being applied in the face for performing a commendable act.

Why don't the railroad magnates build sheds or roofs over the grounds around their depots? I was out to the Santa Fe depot Saturday evening and the waiting room was crowded to overflowing with women and children, were standing in the driving rain. All of this should have large, commodious sheds or roofs over the grounds around their depots?

I had recognized the county superintendent's office, adding new duties—those libraries and historical, giving power to the commissioners to employ an assistant when necessary. Then I would go up a suite of rooms in the old county building for library and historical, put my library in it, and commence building a library of the county, and encourage the farming portion of the county to build a library.

I attended church a few evenings since, there was a large congregation—six or seven hundred persons. In one of the galleries I counted four or five young men, most of them were high school and college boys. They were gentlemen, and were reverent attention, save they, who were not students. They were reverent and unobtrusively. Their seats were so close that everyone in the congregation could see them. They seemed to be a fine congregation, and everyone knew who they were.

I heard a man this week saying some very uncomplimentary things about a fellow-citizen, because he had not been as well-regarded as he, in his judgment, thought he ought to have been. The man whom he was ranting had lived in Wichita about thirty years; the other fellow about that number of months. If anyone living in this town thinks for a moment that a man who has lived in Wichita thirty years is not a citizen, let me tell you, I am sorry to hear of it.
